Business: The group's principal activities are to operate human sperm and blood bank, to develop and market medical instrument, which measures human blood volume. The medical instrument is known as blood volume analyzer (bva-100). The instrument is useful in situations like hemorrhage or surgery wherein it is essential to know the blood volume in the human body. The blood banking services include autologous blood banking services, in which donors deposit their own blood up to ten years. This process eliminates donor transmitted diseases as the donors can receive their own blood at any point of emergency. The sperm banks provide frozen semen services, which target men undergoing procedures that may impair fertility.

Business: The group's principal activity is to develop and market a proprietary drug delivery system. This system is capable of introducing and removing high dose chemotherapy agents to a diseased organ system while greatly inhibiting their entry into the general circulation system. The group has developed a system, the delcath system, to isolate the liver from the general circulatory system and to administer chemotherapy and other therapeutic agents directly to the liver. The group is in the development stage and conducts clinical trials designed to secure marketing approval for the system in the United States. The delcath system kit includes the following disposable components: infusion catheter, double balloon catheter, extracorporeal filtration circuit, filters and return catheter.

Business: The company's principal activities are to develop, assemble, market and install computer systems. The computer systems capture video, digitally captured images and scanned images, digitize the image, link the digitized images to text or data and store the image and text on a computer database. This allows for transmitting the image and text by computer or over telephone transmission lines to remote locations. The principal product of the company is the compu-capture law enforcement program, which is marketed to law enforcement agencies and jail facilities. The company has one patent application, number 09/08/800, for a device and method for scanning and mapping a surface and it owns the proprietary rights to the software used in the compu-capture(R) programs. In addition, ddsi owns the rights to the trademarks compu-capture(R), compu-color(R) and compu-scan(R) both trademarks have been registered with the United States patent and trademark office.

Business: The group's principal activities are to design, develop and manufacture proton exchange membrane (pem) electrochemical products for commercial applications. The pem technology is incorporated in two families of products namely, hydrogen generators and regenerative fuel cell systems. The hydrogen generators convert water and electricity into high purity, pressurized hydrogen gas using pem electrolysis. The regenerative fuel cell systems integrates pem hydrogen generation technology with pem fuel cell technology to create a power quality device that produces hydrogen from water and electricity, stores the hydrogen, and uses the hydrogen as fuel for the production of electricity. The products of the group function as power generating and energy storage devices, the registered trademarks include proton(R), hogen(R), unigen(R), fuelgen(tm), hipress(tm) and transforming energy(tm). On 10-Dec-2003, the group acquired northern power systems inc.
